

It is outrageous that the FCC would consider giving large media conglomerates more market shares. Murdoch isn't even an American for one thing. More importantly, this will allow information to be controlled by a few and limit access to unbiased reporting. It is just another step to the dumbing down of America where the general public becomes increasingly unaware of various viewpoints and less informed about the world around them. This coupled with the crisis in education and the loss of other civil liberties is threatening our most basic freedoms. I urge you to protect our freedom of choice in the media which is supposed to serve the American people, but profit meagrcorporations. This smacks of foul play and I wonder about the real reason the FCC would so blatantly ignore the majority's wishes. In this time of greed and kickback, it looks very bad.
